That Wonderful Year

That wonderful year, 1960—a year of thrills, excitement, madness—is a picture story of and comments on some of the thrills, excitement, and hard work mixed with a little madness.

Always there was someone to share with you your struggle with Latin declensions, your pride in your shop projects, the feeling of achievement when you made your first dress in "home ec.," the unsolvable equations, dissecting earthworms and frogs in biology, your first frightening explosion in chemistry, hours spent on term papers, the time you first typed without looking at the keys, and the excitement you first experienced with history and science classes on television.

Even sweeter to remember are the "extras" which life at Conway High offers—clubs, your first time on stage, conventions, pep rallies, the "big" ball game, Junior-Senior Prom, and the dances in the gym.

Friends, studies, the extra curriculars—everything from the sublime to the ridiculous—will come into focus with these memories of THAT WONDERFUL YEAR at Conway High.

Spirits soared at the pep rally on the eve of the annual grid battle between the Conway Tigers and Georgetown Gators when Tiger fans turned out to burn the gator.

That wonderful year, we hope you'll see

Tension runs high and excitement rampant on the afternoon of Homecoming. The cheerleaders lend their beauty and grace as well as their cheers to boost the Tigers.

For the first time television is being used to teach science and American history classes. In these classes interest is higher, and students and teachers express delight at the progress being made.

The past reappear, like a fond memory

Mr Singletom presents an engraved silver bowl to Miss Anna Lewis on her retirement from Conway High School, after four decades of devoted service to the youth of Henry County. Mr Arthur Smith looks on approvingly.

A year of many changing days

Parent-teacher-student conferences, scheduled in the spring, give the parents an opportunity to view the students recent and discuss schedules for the next year. Mrs. Sessions greets Mrs. Terry and Ann for their appointment.

After three years of arduous work, Mr. Thigpen and the chorus capture top honors in the State Music Festival held at Winthrop College.

Gender youth, with devious ways

To help youth discover that it is wise and rewarding to consider God's counsel as they select and fulfill their individual careers, prayer cell is conducted each morning at 8:00 in Room 10.

With decor, music, and food to create the mood, guests dance in an Oriental garden at the Junior-Senior Prom

Alice Jordan, left, state vice president of the Future Teachers' Association exchanges congratulations with Joyce Brown, state president of the Future Homemakers Association. The girls save newspaper clippings for scrapbooks.

Making his initial appearance before the student body is the Honorable Strom Thurmond, senator from South Carolina. After speaking at length on the Constitution, he answered many student inquiries on government and politics

One high school dance, that brought romance

Robert Thompkins sprints around left end on his way to pay dirt as the Conway Tigers defeated the Lake View Gators 32-0.

"... Everybody from Conway stand up and holler" echoes throughout the stadium as the Tigers soar to victory

Glue noisy fun, the games we won

Do you recall or remember at all

Mr. Singleton, after being named "Man of the Year," proudly displays his distinguished service plaque to Dan Hull. Mr. Hull is president of the state T & I. Organization Happiness glows in the faces of staff members, Kathryn Davis, Terry Marshall and Nancy Cerman as they read the press release of yearbook awards from Columbia Scholastic Press Association. The Mirror cops first place.

Highlighting the Student Council delegates visit to Corpus Christi, is a tour of the Naval Air Station, largest in the world

That wonderful, wonderful year

Just take a look at the faces of Joe Earl Lee and Esther Branton. Does this picture really need more copy?

The unblemished page in September . . . the final tally in June; the warmth of renewed friendships and the thrill of new acquaintances; the loss of summer freedom and the return to autumn routine. Out of momentary confusion grows organization. Study replaces leisure and another year unfolds.

It is here that you sketch the pattern and stamp it with the trademark of your distinct personalities. You may modify, where necessary, for the past is never entirely acceptable, and you may initiate new policies when the need arises. On these beginnings you build; from this origin you develop.

Local boy makes good as

Edward M. Singleton

Dedications generally refer to the "devotion to one's job" and "untiring efforts" but we'll just pass these by as part of his job as our principal. We'd like to mention the small things that make him not just a good principal, but a truly fine person.

A native of Horry, Mr. Singleton has grown up among Horry County people and has a deep understanding of them and their problems. He is reasonable in his judgement; just in his personal and business relations; humble in his actions; and unshaking in his faith in youth. He tactfully points out to us what is right, and when acclaim comes to our student body or school, he is first to acknowledge his pride in our achievement, but modestly denies any credit.

Occasionally we like to think of him as the lad who grew up on our main street—spending his barefoot youth sneaking away for a dip in Smith Lake, teasing little girls in school, studying some too—a normal boy. Underneath his quiet dignity he must sometimes think of days when he trod these corridors as a student—the times he was called to the office by the principal and requested to "bend over." But these things do not take from his dignity, they only add to our admiration of him as a truly fine person.

public servant, father, and principal

It came as no surprise to us that Mr. Singleton was named by a local organization as MAN OF THE YEAR. Mr. Lonnie Causey presents him with a plaque recognizing him for distinguished service

Mr. Singleton's pride and joy is his little daughter Francesca with whom he spends much of his free time.

The perfect picture of a relaxed principal is shown here as the student body applauds Mr. Singleton on being chosen MAN OF THE YEAR in Conway.

Athletics offer a variety of opportunities to grow in

Athletics

Students can make use of students' talents to compete with others in a variety of activities. Developing a sense of fair play and competitive sportsmanship, and society makes athletics an integral part of our school's culture. Students can participate in a variety of sports, including track and field, state and national competition.

Establishing a tradition in the field of track and field gives students a sense of pride and accomplishment. Encouraging the students gives students a sense of accomplishment, support and encouragement. Supporting track and field sports is a tradition that has made its mark on our school.

by running of Wayne Sessions

Hot, sticky days in mid-August found members of the football team on the field getting in shape for their opening game. When the season opened, they were in tip-top condition. The running of Wayne Sessions and the passing of Ray Lundy and Billy Gosnell helped spark the season for the Tigers. Although they did not win every game, the Tigers came out with a victorious season, winning five, losing four, and tying one.

Larry Woodle manages to hold on to the ball in spite of being hit hard from the rear by a Mullins tackle.

Varsity loses twelve senior players

Accurate snaps characterized center Jimmy Harrelson, while speed and accuracy were the traits of guards Billy Singleton and Grier Johnson.

Brushing off aggressors from the end positions were Richard Booth, Larry Woodle, and Bunkey Jones.

Ray Lundy, Ben Todd, Wayne Sessions made up our hard-hitting senior backfield.

Tackles Billy Wetherington, Joe Creel, and Bill Huggins were an anchor in our line.

Louise Thompson reigned as Homecoming Queen for the 1959-60 season.

Billy Gosnell cuts a corner to elude would-be Lakeview tacklers.

Homecoming brings thrills

After a long week of nominating, voting, and poster-making, the homecoming festivities were climaxed by the homecoming parade and the crowning of the Homecoming Queen, Louise Thompson. The crowning took place during half-time of the game between the Conway Tigers and the Lake View Gators, in which the Tigers marked up another victory, 32-0.

Cheerleaders add zest to Head cheerleader Nancy Coleman takes her assignment seriously, and puts much time into the planning and practicing of yells and songs.

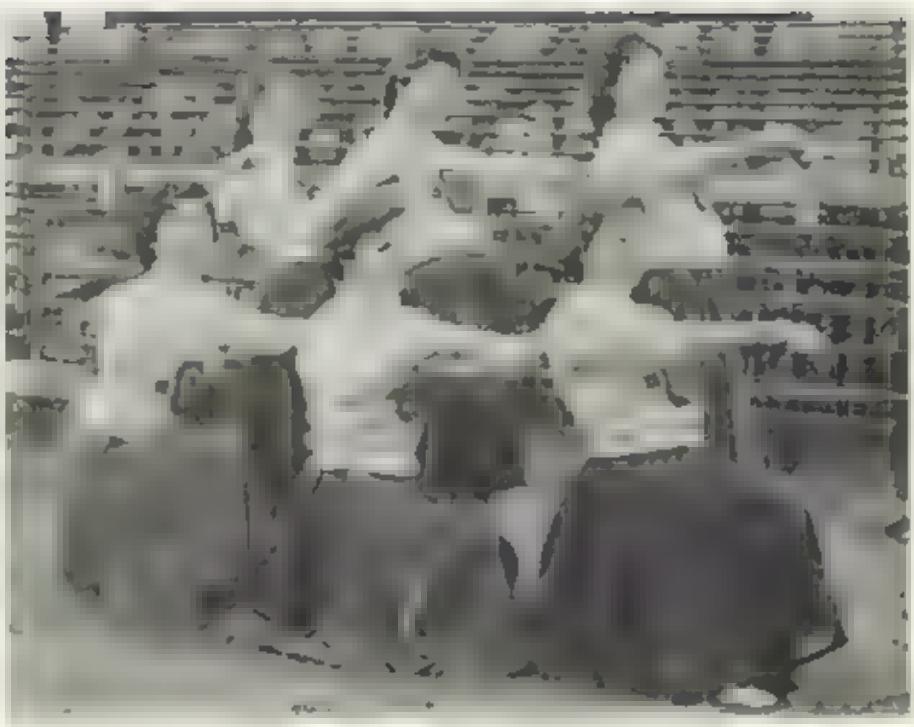

While other students were picnicing and sunning on the beaches in mid-June, the cheerleaders gathered for long practice sessions. By September, they not only had revitalized old cheers, but had added many new fight songs. For the first time, our cheerleaders joined the National Cheerleaders Association. These peppy girls, with their spirit and song, were always down front to urge the teams on to victory.

sports events

"B" Squad cheerleaders fought equally as hard as the team itself, so that the players might have the support needed for winning games.

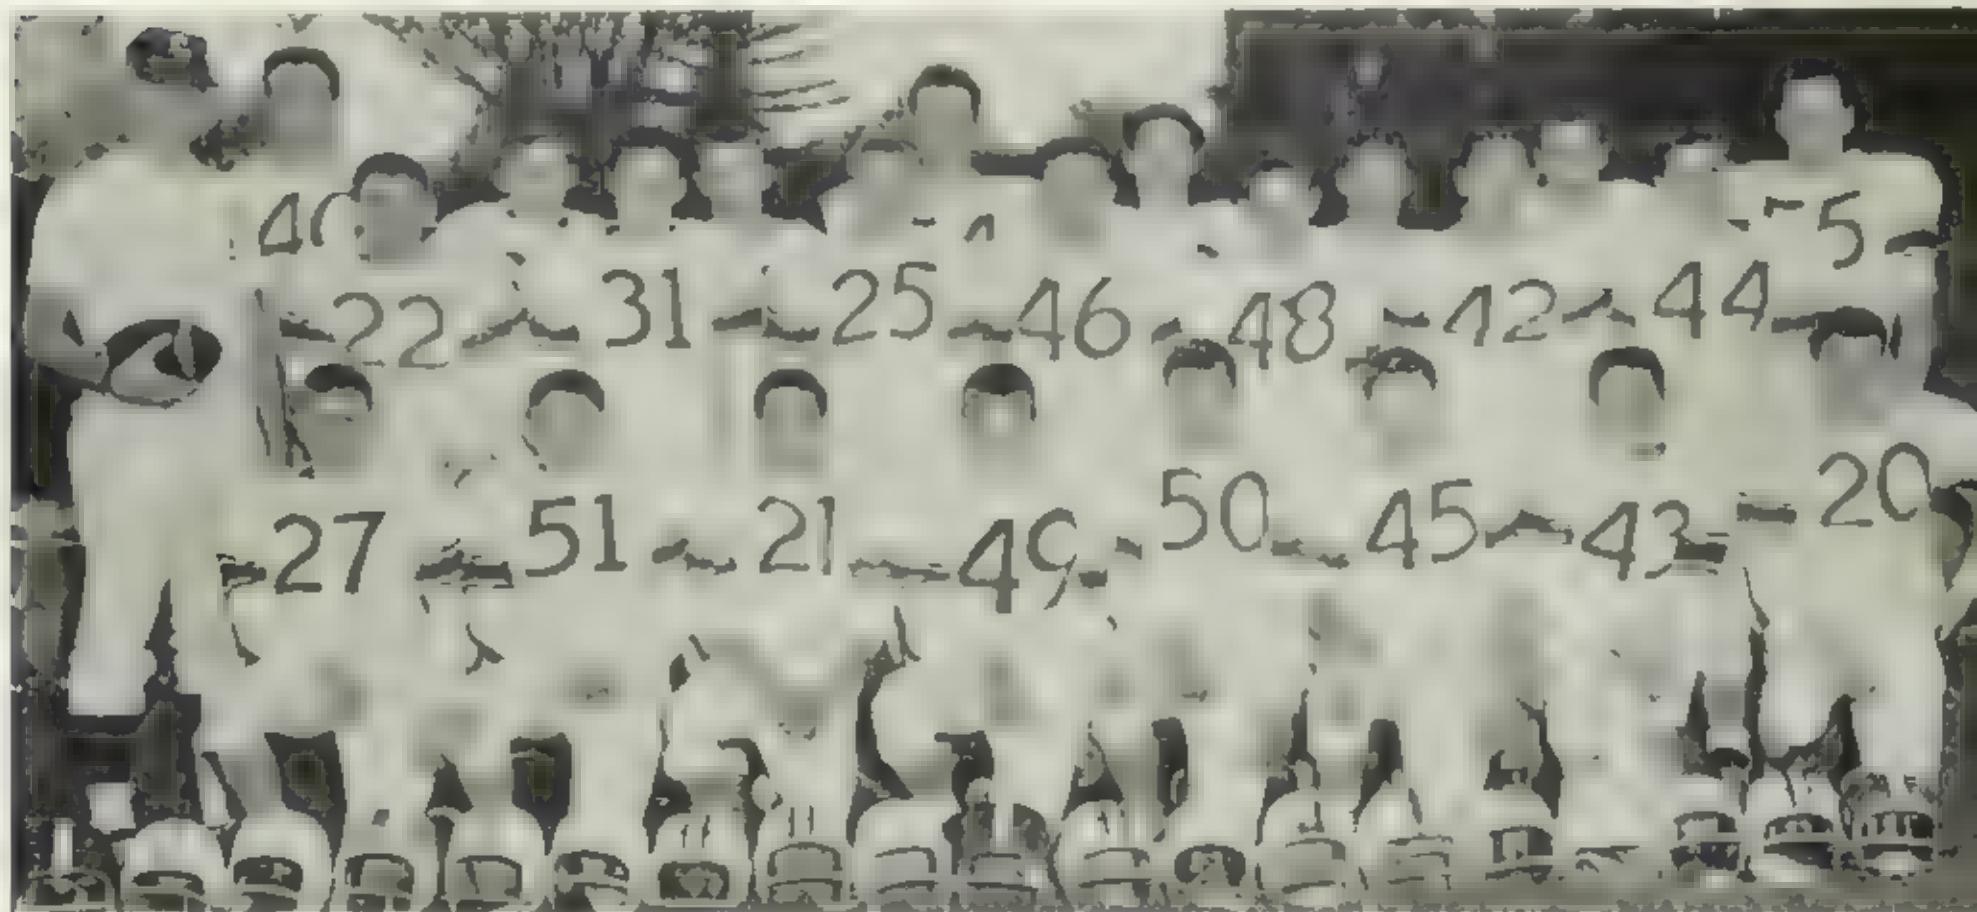

"B" Squad cheerleaders are Kathy Stogner, Mary Butler, Sharyn Barbee, Margaret Ann Dorman, Frances Jones, and Linda Inabnit

"B" Squad learns fundamentals

On September 1, the "B" Squad, small but anxious, started their long, hard climb to making a football team. Having lost nearly all their starters in '59, the squad had to start from scratch this year. Although their season was not one of complete success, they accomplished much in the mastery of techniques.

Many girls hopeful of a winning season turned out for basketball. Playing on the varsity are Datus Hunter, Lucia Bacot, Mary Bacot, Kelly St. John, Alice Jordan, Aurie Lou Gosnell, Harriet Wall,

Girls display

This year has been one of hard work and rugged determination on the part of the Tigeresses. Under the able coaching of Mrs. E. E. Salley, the girls have played excellent, although not always winning, basketball. The Tigeresses defeated Loris in an outstanding game during the county tournament and went to the semi-finals. The team is looking forward to an even better season next year because they will be losing only two first-string players, Lynda Langley and Lucia Bacot. The combined efforts of the whole team and their coach have boosted the Tigeresses to a better record than last year. The girls have shown fine sportsmanship throughout the season.

Clubs provide a chance to share experiences

Activities

No scholastic structure is complete without the finishing touch of the many clubs—the hustle and bustle of meetings, minutes, and money-making projects. Through participation in clubs each student contributes his interests and abilities to the building of a firm foundation in student government, in spiritual life, and in social and occupational activities. Students learn to think constructively as plans for programs and special events transpire. Leadership is explored and initiative and special talents uncovered. The importance of co-operation and teamwork is learned as students rush to meet newspaper and yearbook deadlines, practice for plays, and work on money-making projects.

The character and personality of the student as individuals is most clearly portrayed through the various activities in which he chooses to participate.

Student Council's trip to Texas

Officers, Louise Thompson, Miriam Lawrimore, and Lane Causey and advisers, Misses Carmichael and Allen, represented the Student Council at the Southern Association of Student Councils which met in November in Corpus Christi, Texas. The trip was made by car and side tours were taken to New Orleans and Mexico.

Conway High's Student Council, the student legislative power, is composed of the four executive officers, the class officers, and one representative from each homeroom.

The actual work of the council is carried on through the homerooms where ideas and opinions are expressed and the representative in turn brings them to the council meetings. A revised handbook given to all students this year contained information about our school.

Issues of the paper are entered in competition with other school papers throughout the state and nation for judging and journalism awards.

Moving day, generally dreaded by all, was a joyous occasion for the Inkling. With the help of the Student Council and the shop, new quarters were built in the basement. Diversified education creates responsibility and dependability

Officers Angie Dell Edge, Esther Brunton, Jennie Sue Rabon, and Dru-cilla Capps are responsible for the successful year which the club enjoyed.

Preparation of a merchandise manual, public speaking, job application, and window-judging are some of the activities in which D. E. Club members are required to participate. Striving ever to develop leadership and to create an abiding interest in chosen occupations are the main aims of the club. By participating in these various activities, members develop a feeling of responsibility to society, and a sense of belonging to the world around them.

Bright lights, the thrill of opening night, and their names on the program, give the members a taste of the theater and show business. The Thespian Society is an honorary organization which tries to establish and promote standards of excellence in all phases of dramatic arts. The Thespian's chief purpose is to promote an interest in and to increase enjoyment of dramatics. By portraying various characters with deep feeling and emotion, students gain an appreciation for the art.

The Sixteens, a group who perform frequently for civic club and social gatherings, are seated: Marlyn Moore, Carol Marshall, and Sylvia Stalvey; standing are Elizabeth Cribb, Katharine Hughes, and Margaret Ann Dorman.

In the fall of 1957 a new chorus program was organized at C. H. S. under the direction of Raymond Thigpen. One year later the mixed chorus received the highest rating given at the S. C. High School Music Festival.

The choral program has continued to grow during the past three years until one-fifth of our student body is now a performing member of some choral group. In addition to the Girls' Glee Club and the mixed chorus, (the Choraleers), students who show outstanding ability are given the opportunity of auditioning for the male quartet or the girls' sextette.

Each year the chorus represents Conway High in the District Music Festival, and the State Music Festival at Winthrop College. Another highlight of this year's activity was a thirty-minute telecast over WBTW-TV, Florence, by the Choraleers at Christmas.

school life

Meeting daily, the Girls' Glee Club works to help as it does car interpretation and appreciation. They perform frequently in assembly.

All who hear the performances of the Choralists are deeply inspired by the wonderful quality of music which they produce.

Honor students exemplify spirit of motto

Twenty-nine seniors make up the membership of the National Honor Society. They are, first row, Marilyn Miller, Billie Mae Wood, Cammie Burnett, Sylvia Stalvey, Ginny B. Marshall, Martha Holbert, and Ann Cox; second row, Joyce Brown, Alice Jordan, Linda Shuford, Jane Crowgey, Barbara Gainey, Jo Ellen Ausband, and Saundra Causey; third row,

Rewarding students who are outstanding in scholarship, service, leadership, and character is the purpose of the Conway chapter of the National Honor Society.

Membership is determined by a point system and is retained by maintaining a 2.0 scholastic average. A student's character is approved by the faculty committee after his scholastic record has been surveyed by faculty and Honor Society members.

Two induction ceremonies are presented in assembly during the year. Each is followed by a reception honoring new members and their parents.

Immediately after new members are inducted, Mr. Singleton welcomes them into the society.

Ginny B. Marshall rises after being tapped by Bonnie Keistler and Marilyn Miller.

Superior juniors selected as marshals

Newly named marshals are Patricia Inabnit, Mae Eason, Dancy Hunter, Doris Stevens, Peggy Goff, Marsha Yarborough, Tom Bourne, and Dorothy Alford; second row, Katharine Hughes, Sandy Creel, Charles Floyd, Ann Terry, Spiky Metts, and Lane Causey. Not pictured Sims Hart and Harriet Wall.

Shouts of joy from Katharine Hughes and Ann Terry proved their surprise when informed they were chief and assistant chief marshals, respectively.

Serving as a Junior Marshal is one of the most envied honors that a Conway High student can achieve. To be eligible, a 2.0 average must have been maintained by a student for the first five semesters in high school. Citizenship, leadership, character, and service are factors also considered by a faculty committee making the final selections.

Marshals lead the senior class procession, usher, and distribute programs at the Commencement sermon and graduation exercises.

Peggy Goff, Patricia Inabnit, and Tom Bourne look over commencement programs and discuss their duties as marshals.

Pep is their business

Members of the club select a record for the hi-fi. Music is played during lunch.

Backing the teams at all sports events, the Pep Teen Club members turn out en masse to add zest and spirit with their presence and cheers. This group sits together at games and forms a lively nucleus for the cheering section. As an extra dash, they add color to after-game entertainment by decorating the canteen and serving as hosts to visiting teams.

Wrapping the goal posts in traditional green and white are club members Nancy Coleman, Barbara Gainey, Sherry Robbins, and Bonnie Keistler.

Members of the Library Club are standing. Marcia Thompson, Martha Hubert, Agnes Reesor, Jean Page Watts, Winifred Harrelson, Dorothy Thompsons, Carolyn Anderson, Carol Grainger; seated, Brenda Martin, Aurie Lou Gosnell, Sandra Jordan, Saundra Thompsons, Billie Mae Wood, Meredith Carter and Frances Long.

Library assistants render outstanding service

Without the help of the members of the Library Club, the operation of an efficient library would be difficult. The activities of the group are varied. Members prepare new books for the shelves; help in checking out, filing, and issuing books; display attractive bulletin boards; and help generally in making the library a desirable place for research and study.

In the fall, the club was host to the district organization at which time Aurie Lou Gosnell served as district president. This meeting offered an opportunity for library assistants to become acquainted with one another, and to discuss the many problems relating to their work.

Officers Agnes Reesor, Sandra Jordan, Aurie Lou Gosnell, and Saundra Thompsons stand behind the library desk always willing to aid in anyway they can.

Agnes Reesor introduces to the student body Senator Strom Thurmond whose visit to our campus was arranged by the Library Club.

Key Club members serve school, community

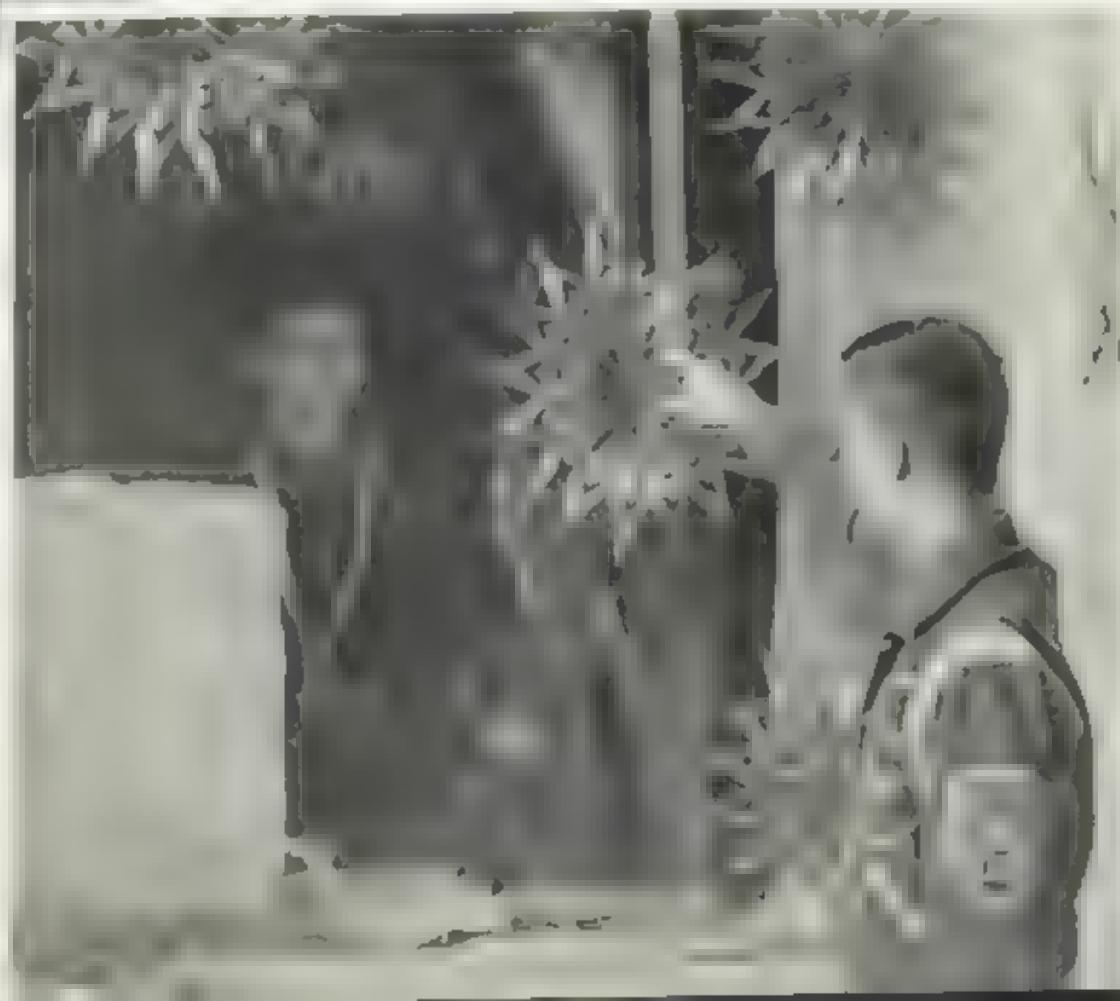

President Richard Booth addresses Key Club members during a called meeting

Members of Key Club decorate a car for the Homecoming parade.

Sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club, the Key Club initiates several worthwhile projects each year. At football games, members sold programs. The club was responsible for Homecoming and planned details of the parade and half-time events. Clean-up campaigns were waged during the year by members and posters were displayed in an effort to encourage students to maintain clean buildings and grounds.

Members, elected on a basis of leadership, character, and achievement, work to promote good citizenship and to create a better understanding between the school and community.

Grier Johnson, Stan Cross, and Ben Todd decorate a store window at Christmas, one of the projects of the Key Club.

Art Club inspires originality - uncovers talent

Creating a greater interest in and appreciation of art in the school and community is the first and highest aim of the Art Club.

Throughout the year members serve the school by aiding other clubs in poster making and participating in various other art-related activities. This year some of the members designed and painted the nursery rhyme characters for the "Mary had a Little Lamb" entry in the Christmas Wonderland extravaganza.

Jerome Solomon points out to Mary Ruth McCutcheon and Lucia Bacot the delicate shading in the watercolors on exhibit in the art room.

Elizabeth Johnston puts the finishing touches on a print which is being admired by Billy Wayne Singleton.

Recognition comes to the beautiful and deserving

Features

Special events, awards and honors—these were the highlights of our year. Exceptional ability, talent, faithfulness and devotion to one's school combine themselves in a few people to set them apart for special recognition. Oftentimes it was difficult to make a choice because we had so many outstanding candidates. In a student body the size of ours one would naturally expect many lovely girls and even our judge confessed the difficulty of having to select so few finalists from the many girls competing.

We shall long remember the secret ballots, the breath-taking suspense as we awaited the results of the balloting, and finally, the joy we shared with the recipients.

The people and their honors featured in these pages are perhaps among our most cherished memories of this year.

We proudly present our beauties as chosen by

Tommy Sands

Introducing

Sandra Harrison as Miss Mirror

Hers is a warm vibrant type of beauty which one would expect to find in the quiet, even tempered girl that she is.

Sandra enjoys dancing and dining to the melodies of her favorite singer Tommy Sands.

In high school Sandra has achieved many honors. During her junior year she was acclaimed "Miss Junior", served as a marshal, and is a member of the National Honor Society.

Sandra plans to become a secretary and with her combination of talents, she will surely attain success.

Joyce Brown as Miss Senior

Poised and ready for an evening of fun, Joyce, as always, looks enchanting. Her talents are many and because she designs and sews her entire wardrobe, she is the envy of her friends.

Tall and comely, she has lovely blonde hair, blue eyes, and a captivating smile. Her manner is one of sophistication and refinement.

Beauty is not her only attribute. Joyce is a member of the National Honor Society, an outstanding senior in Home Economics and Mathematics, and president of the State Future Homemakers of America.

Mearlyn Dunn as Miss Junior

Looking as though she just stepped out of a Fifth Avenue salon is Mearlyn Dunn who plans to become a fashion designer.

Mearlyn's bright blue eyes sparkle with a glint of mischief and her friendly smile attracts many friends.

Steak has a special appeal to her, but unlike many, she doesn't care for ice cream. She enjoys traveling—especially to Carolina for week-end dances.

Peggy Johnston as Miss Sophomore

If Phil Harris could see Peggy, his first words might well be,
"That's what I like about the South."

With her exquisite coloring, dark hair, big, dreamy eyes, friendly smile, and honey-toned voice, she's a real southern belle. And if that isn't proof enough, she even blushes—a rare charm today.

Peggy dislikes hillybilly music, but adores the weirded styling of Fats Domino and sneaks a listen while reading Shakespeare.

Linda Hanks as Miss Freshman

Five foot two, vibrant with energy, Linda Hanks is a typical teen of today. Long brown hair drawn back in a pony tail accents her youth. Her smile radiates a glowing personality.

Linda's hobby is collecting shells and listening to popular recordings. She enjoys comedies, likes chocolates and dislikes intensely television and cream cheese. She excels in sciences and plans to become a doctor. Lucky patients!

Doris Stevens competes in national "Teen" Contest

For the first time a Conway girl entered a national contest sponsored by Teen Magazine to select the young girl to represent the typical teen.

Each class voted for one girl and from these four, an impartial board of judges selected DORIS STEVENS, a junior, "MISS TEEN" of Conway High.

High School beauty collects titles

Seventy-two girls vied for the title of MISS CONWAY HIGH of 1959 in a contest sponsored by the Junior Class. The judges, after hours of eliminating, finally awarded the honor to RENEE WILLIAMSON, whose blonde beauty was completely captivating.

Since she was selected Miss Conway High, she has won a second honor, MISS CONWAY.

These bring

Taking time out from a busy schedule to look over an application to Wofford, is RAY LUNDY who was voted KING TEEN by his classmates. His character and personality made him an easy winner.

On a week-end visit to the college, Ray will be given an opportunity to compete for a scholarship.

Delegates are selected by school officials and officers of the local American Legion to represent high schools at BOYS' STATE CONVENTION held in June at the University of South Carolina where they are trained in state, county, and city government.

STEWART SLOTNICK, GRIER JOHNSON, and DICKIE TERRY were chosen to represent C. H. S. Before leaving, they examine deed files in the local courthouse.

C.H.S. honors

On the basis of character, personality, and participation in extra curricular activities, KAREN WATTS was voted MISS HI MISS by her fellow classmates.

An invitation to visit Winthrop College for a weekend of entertainment is extended to the Miss Hi-Misses from the Carolinas.

Surprise registers on the face of JOYCE BROWN as she receives the CITIZENSHIP AWARD from the Daughters of the American Revolution

She was elected to receive this honor by a student vote and the approval of a faculty committee.

Administration and faculty combine talents to strengthen curriculum.

Administration, Faculty, and Curriculum

Directing, disciplining, differentiating—the members of our administration and faculty etch our futures.

Proud of our school's scholastic rating, faculty members work continuously to strengthen and improve our academic program. Besides teaching regular studies, teachers sponsor clubs and other outside activities. In spite of their busy schedule, however, they often find time to enjoy each other's company at social events.

Study under the extensive curriculum of our school opens the way to desired goals and successful living. This curriculum is designed to meet the needs of individual students and to train them to be useful members of society. The students who plan to go to college and those who wish to go directly into business or industry find courses to fit their individual needs.

The best leadership

W. ARTHUR SMITH
Superintendent, Area 1 Schools

The Board of Trustees, composed of seven dedicated members, is elected by the school patrons to serve terms of five years. These men devote their time unselfishly to the task of formulating policies which guide the superintendent and principals in the smooth operation of our schools.

To keep the Board informed, to seek advice from them on school problems, and to execute policies set forth by the Board is the job of the Superintendent.

The Board and Superintendent combine efforts in numerous tasks—they submit budgets to the County Board; plan for and approve the expenditures of all funds; see that buildings are properly maintained and well kept; and study enrollments and population trends to estimate future school needs.

One of the most important functions of the Board is to interpret the schools to the public. Members of the present Board are Odel, Marsh, Jim Glasgow; Eugene Proctor; Arthur Smith, superintendent, Robert Burroughs, Henry Brooks; and S. P. Hawes. Not pictured is Jesse Lee.

Barry Garren works a difficult graph problem but his solution is being questioned by Mearlyn Dunn.

Meeting the mathematical needs of students who are college-bound and the needs of those who are planning to enter the business world immediately following graduation is the responsibility of the mathematics department.

College preparatory courses include two years of elementary algebra, one year of plane geometry, and one semester each of advanced algebra and trigonometry. These are designed to produce scientific thinking and accuracy in practical situations.

General mathematics courses offered are one year each of business mathematics, applied mathematics, and bookkeeping. These courses provide an applicable knowledge with which to meet everyday needs.

After accurately solving a problem in geometry, Joe Earl Lee explains it to the class.

In chemistry Sherry Robbins takes seriously the preparation of hydrogen chloride.

Miss Allen and Mr. McDonald share the good news that each has won a National Science Foundation scholarship.

Science courses include general science, physical science, biology, chemistry, and physics. General science is taught by television and physics is taught by film.

Not only do these classes strive to prepare adequately those who plan to go to college, but also try to impress upon those who are not going to college the importance of science in everyday life.

Guest speakers, field trips, movies, and television have added appeal to the social studies program at C. H. S. World geography, world history, American History, government, and psychology are offered.

Aims of the history courses are to give students a clearer appreciation of our democratic heritage; to create a desire among students to perform the duties and accept the responsibilities of citizenship, and to emphasize the place of the United States in world affairs.

Objectives of the psychology classes are to help the student to understand himself better; to teach him to get along with others; and to help him choose his vocation in accordance with his abilities.

Dramatization of ballads

Courses in the English department are designed specifically to meet the needs of two groups—those who are preparing for college, and those whose needs are more general.

Teaching the essentials of the English language and the communication of ideas is achieved through the study of grammar, spelling, vocabulary, sentence structure, letter writing, composition, and oral expression.

College preparatory courses stress English and American literature, which are brought to life by dramatizations, field trips, and original projects.

One year of business English is offered which provides a grammar refresher followed by the mechanics of business letter writing and the actual composition of the various business letters.

Projects of the senior English classes are displayed by Tom Bourne, Joe Thompson, and Sally Baiden.

Jane Crowgey, Ann Cox and Bonnie Keistler dramatize the ballad "Bonnie Barbara Allen" in assembly.

"The Rich Young Ruler", presented by the Bible class, was performed at many of the local churches.

First year Latin is devoted to the study of grammar and vocabulary, while second year Latin involves a review of grammar through reading of Roman home life, Roman gods, and Roman sports and games. Third year Latin, offered for the first time this year, delves further into Roman life with the study of government; polities; prose of Livy, Sallust, and Pliny; and orations and letters of Cicero. Frequent discussions on Roman life with posters to illustrate, and special reports supplement the text material.

In a two-year Spanish course, the study of grammar is the primary concern. Correct pronunciation is mastered by listening to recordings, staging mock television programs, and question-answer sessions—all in Spanish. Spanish customs and music are studied as an integral part of this course.

Music encourages creative expression

Three periods are given each day to a choral music program. Separate classes of music theory and sight reading teach beginners the basic fundamentals of music. Advanced students are in performing groups where they put their knowledge of fundamentals to use.

There are four musical groups — the CHORALEERS, a mixed group of eighty voices; a GIRLS' GLEE CLUB; the FOUR DEUCES, a male quartet; and the SIXTEENS, a group of six girls.

Students who are interested in instrumental music may enroll in band. This musical unit is presently made up of forty-two members who meet each day for group and individual instruction. Another period is devoted to giving special help to the clarinet section. Proper care and repair of instruments is also taught. A summer band clinic, conducted by Mr. Miller, attracts many students who wish to improve their performance.

Home Economics elevates standard of living

Seven major areas—clothing, foods, child care, health and home nursing, home improvement, home management, and personal home living are stressed in the three-year study of home economics.

Continued efforts are being made to help pupils to see the important relationship between classroom instruction and real home making experiences.

Efficiency, accuracy important in business

Business education concentrates on secretarial and clerical training. Two years of typewriting and shorthand, and one year each of business English, bookkeeping, office practice, and business arithmetic are offered. In planning its program, this department considers the needs and interests of the students, the local business needs, and job opportunities.

The Commerce Department aids school personnel and civic groups by typing and mimeographing examinations, programs, and year-books. Students serve as assistants in the offices of the superintendent and principal, gaining valuable experience and rendering a worthwhile service.

Agriculture encourages farm progress

Developing agricultural leadership is the chief objective of the agriculture department. Students are taught the principles of crop raising, methods of keeping farm records, the use and care of major farm tools, how to develop and maintain forest lands, and how to judge cattle and soil.

Various projects related to farm improvements are undertaken each year. Valuable to students is the pig chain through which many get a start in raising their own pigs. This year the class hatched baby chicks in an incubator and colored them a few days before they were born.

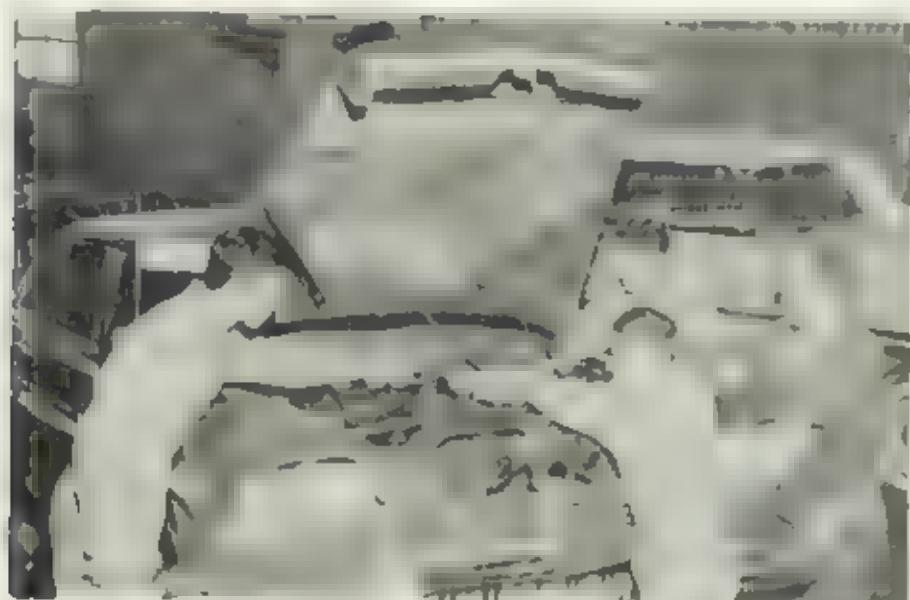

Lenair Brazier, Eugene Jordan, Wendell Beverly, Bill Nelson, Donnie Causey, and Sammy Paul put the finishing touches on a pig feeder.

Auto mechanics and carpentry are offered to students wishing to enter trade fields immediately following graduation. In auto mechanics students acquire a knowledge of how internal combustion engines work and how to repair them.

In carpentry classes students are taught to measure and saw materials necessary for the actual construction of buildings. This knowledge is put to a test in building projects for the school and community.

Trade courses open vocational opportunities

In this field, two years of woodworking and one year of mechanical drawing are offered. Students learn in first-year woodworking to use and care for hand tools, and to make simple projects. Second-year woodworking teaches the operation and care of power tools. More complex projects are undertaken and after learning to interpret working drawings and methods of wood finishing, students are able to make handsome and useful pieces of furniture.

Mechanical drawing aims to furnish a knowledge of graphic expression for college-bound students planning to major in engineering.

Billy Anderson and Donald Todd know the reward of patience when putting the finishing touches on furniture.

Distributive education prepares students for tomorrow

Distributive education is concerned basically with helping students to make an intelligent choice of an occupation, encouraging high ethical standards in business, providing recreational and social activities, developing leadership, and engendering a desire to keep abreast of current developments in business through training.

Friendliness is of prime importance in rendering good sales service. Drucilla Capps, Jennie Sue Rabon, Esther Branton, and Angie Edge learn other important factors of selling in D. E. Class.

Students overflow with determination and school spirit.

Classes

Seniors, juniors, sophomores, and freshmen are all part of that complex group known as "classes." They are the people of the school; they give it spirit and make it glow with life. Without the students and their hopes, their talents, their faults—there would be no school, for the school, after all, is the students. Each person, from the newest freshman to the busiest senior, helps to give the school its character and reputation. Students—studying, leading, working, playing, and dreaming—make the school worthy of love and service. More than the building or heritage or the traditions, Conway High is people.

During our high school careers, we have found that not only a river of school spirit flows through Conway High, but a strong feeling of class spirit is also prevalent. In our freshman year, we were loyal to the Freshman Class—it was the biggest and best. This same class devotion graduated with us into each new year and now, as we seniors separate, it will follow us through all our lives.

A rushed but happy senior year

The senior class officers Sandra Harrison, treasurer; Buck Cutts, president; Ginny B. Marshall, secretary, and Ann Cox, vice president run off ballots for voting senior superlatives.

There are three kinds of seniors; those who loaf and skip a lot, those who date and stay out late, those who work and study hard. But we all had a single hope—to graduate.

Take a look at our talents. We had artists, athletes, mechanics, and journalists; actors, musicians, an occasional scholar and a variety of personalities from A to Z. Achievements were not to be forgotten either. The National Merit Examination led to the award of scholarships. Thirty of the class were members of the National Honor Society and many were outstanding in departments.

As extra curricular, we "did" the school and town. We slaved over nightly assignments, academic and otherwise. We mooched and munched in the drugstore. We have read our last Mirror and held our last class meeting. We have played our last game with Georgetown—and lost.

With the culmination of our green years, we are faced with the realization that the decisions we make now will determine the course of the remainder of our lives. We'll always cherish the friendships and treasure the good times we had in the class of '60—oh, what a wonderful, wonderful year.

Juniors face task of financing year

A riotous magazine sale, the Valentine Dance, National Merit Scholarship Exams, the Miss Conway High shindig, the Junior-Senior—what a wonderful year and what memories we have to cherish.

Our year has been characterized by outstanding achievements in all fields. Many were eligible for National Honor Society, but only the top five per cent were inducted. Members of our class made all varsity teams; Stoney Harrelson, Spiky Metts, Cliff Coward, Merrell Floyd, Harriet Wall, and Creola Coleman played outstanding ball throughout the entire season. Joe Alford received recognition as high salesman in the magazine campaign. Real talent was uncovered in music and drama. Dozens qualified for advanced chorus and Katharine Hughes made the "Sixteens." Sixteen students, because of outstanding academic records, were selected to serve as Junior Marshals.

Most of the year seemed to be spent in planning the Junior-Senior. The magazine sale, for the purpose of financing the prom, surpassed our greatest expectations; and when figures were totaled, they far exceeded all prior sales records. Committees and advisers spent long hours working on ideas for the Junior-Senior. We hosted a gala affair to climax a wonderful, wonderful year!

Working on plans for Junior-Senior are class officers, Mae Eason, secretary-treasurer; Sylvia Jo McKellar, president; and Carl Daniels, vice-president.

Second year is exciting

No one can deny that for the Sophomores this has truly been a wonderful year. What a feeling of greatness to be elevated from the lowly position of Freshman; to be able to feel pride in one's progress; to become a useful part of the mechanics of a school; to blossom socially into a desirable being—one actually thought of as a person and no longer just a Freshman.

Studies grew harder as William Shakespeare loomed with his famed "Friends, Romans, Countrymen, lend me your ears . . ." and Biology with its "kingdom, phylum, class, order . . ." It was anything but order.

Sophomores

Mrs. McIver, class sponsor, discusses the responsibilities of the Sophomore officers with Gail Davis, John Coley Snowden, and John Hussey.

Adding spice to the daily routine came the privilege of joining clubs, with initiations going wild. Some, with a nose for news, found berths on the Inkling; others imagined themselves teachers of the future and were welcomed into the Future Teachers of America. Never to be forgotten was the big night when the thrill of serving at the Junior-Senior was ours—mingling with the elite, stepping briskly to crazy music, spilling punch here and there, and spying on romances.

Since variety is the spice of life, the year has been well-mixed and WONDERFUL.

Freshmen

Mrs. Gerald, freshman class sponsor, explains to Kathy Stogner, vice-president; Johnny Alford, president; and Ann Lee, secretary-treasurer, their duties as class officers.

Bewildered freshmen begin long, hard climb

That wonderful year—says who? The very sight of the building with its tall, foreboding facade makes a freshman seem extremely small, and the hundreds of feet dashing gaily about the corridors only add to the haunting feeling of loneliness of one who doesn't yet belong.

The beginning was frenzied—one of complete adjustment to a new environment. There was the fascination of adding letters in algebra, learning conjugations in Latin, and dissecting earthworms in biology. Upperclassmen only made the confusion worse when, in fun, they directed us to the wrong places at the right time, and the right places at the wrong time.

Relieving the daily grind of classes were the extra curricular activities—cheering the football team, attending high school dances, and joining various clubs. Many incidents of the year seemed trying at the moment, but looking back, it is easy to see that the first year of high school was truly WONDERFUL.

Advertising

No school exists apart from the world surrounding it, but is vitally linked to the community which it serves. Businesses are a contributing factor to our physical and economic well-being. Serving our needs in a material way, the businessmen of our town accept as part of their responsibility, support and encouragement of school activities and publication.

The future may find our streets winding in varying directions, and more elaborate facades lining the main thoroughfares, but the good will of the management will remain unaltered. The friendliness and co-operation extended by our advertisers has been most gratifying and the students, faculty, and administration of Conway High School join the MIRROR staff in thanking these advertisers who made our book possible.

And, so ends a wonderful year.

Another day, another month, another year has passed and lurking ahead is the future, unknown and forbidding. Confidently we face tomorrow, for today we have been strengthened by knowledge, trained for leadership and enriched by companionship. We will be tomorrow what we seek to be today. Life is a ladder, the rungs of which must be mounted consecutively. There is no jumping process. Our departures are symbolic of our entrances. Thus, we begin in September another term, and looking back on the happenings and events one can truly declare that this has indeed been a WONDERFUL YEAR.

Dear Kara,

It sure has been nice knowing you all of these years. You really don't know what you mean to me. I wish I could express in words how I feel about you but, it's impossible. Even though we have had some up and down times, I remember you as a true friend. I'll always remember those good times we've had together especially with "you know who" from ~~long~~ ^{now} ago. I would tell you who I mean but I think you know.

Just think! It's been this time of year to be a big brother. I'll be really busy and love this year, I can't wait. I just want you to meet with Dr. G. at the end. I hope to see soon. I'm so excited. I just a few more days to go.

I hope the night you will come home for you and the others. They are at the first and 2nd. I hope you will come to the 3rd. meeting. I know it's all a big waste of time.

With all my love,
The sincere wishes,
Dante

Dear Vero,

It has been a pleasure knowing you and having classes with you for the past year. I will always remember those classes and lunches we have had together. You may think that it will soon be forgotten, but they will always live in my mind as I think back over the year, it will sure good to get out of school, but I will miss happy school days I have had with you.

I hope to you lots of happiness and great success in whatever you choose and in the future. You are a wonderful person to know. May you have the best of everything that life can offer. But wish and good luck to a very sweet, nice, and safe girl.

Yours to you,

William Corbin
